

Invalid: max-height is set to 50% %

A diagram illustrating an invalid CSS rule. It features a large yellow rectangular area at the top, representing the content area. Below this is a thin, light pink horizontal bar. The text "Invalid: max-height is set to 50% %" is positioned at the top left of the yellow area.

Valid: max-height is set to 50%

A diagram illustrating a valid CSS rule. It features a large light green rectangular area at the top, representing the content area. Below this is a large, solid pink rectangular area, representing the footer or a fixed-height container. The text "Valid: max-height is set to 50%" is positioned at the top left of the green area.